A lifelong resident of Comber

Saturday 19 February 10.00 am – 1.00 pm

Meet at the Square in Comber

The peaceful little town of Comber has a multi-layered history dating back to the arrival of Early Man. Legend tells that St Patrick himself came to this pleasant vale at the north-west end of Strangford Lough and Christianity thrived in this area despite Viking incursions! Later, the Anglo-Normans made their mark, followed by the Scots who settled here in the early 17th century. Whiskey and linen industries helped the small village grow, and the arrival of the Belfast County Down Railway put the town of Comber firmly on the map. Famous for its statue of Major General Sir Robert Rollo Gillespie, its Titanic connections and its award-winning potatoes, Comber today is home to craft shops, artisan food outlets, antiques shops, and some first rate coffee venues. Come along on a walking tour to learn more about this unassuming place - you'll need flat shoes and a raincoat. Distance covered will be about two or three miles at a moderate pace with frequent stops.
